

The Team Members of the 2013 ICC Team of the University of Bonn

Michael Fengler, German, mother tongue: German

Michael studies law at the University of Bonn (third year) and political and administrative science at the University of Hagen (second year). He speaks German, English as well as some French. After passing the intermediate law exam, Michael attended several courses on negotiation, interrogation and rhetoric at the University of Bonn. He works as student assistant in a labour and employment law firm and as a relocation consultant.

Stephan Ortner, German, mother tongue: German

Stephan studies law at the University of Bonn (second year) and works as a student assistant at the chair of Prof. Dr. Wagner LL.M. for civil procedure law. He speaks German, Romanian, English and French. After attending several courses on negotiation, mediation and rhetoric at the University of Bonn he became part of the student organisation "Bonn Negotiators". While being an intern at the TV Channel N24 and the law-firm GSK Stockmann & Kollegen, Stephan realized how important and useful negotiation-skills and the constant improvement of these are.

Clara Schröder, German, mother tongue: German

Clara is studying law in her first year at the University of Bonn. She speaks German and English fluently and has basic knowledge of French and Spanish.

She attended various courses on mediation and negotiation and is interested in languages and international experiences.

Thomas Ackermann, German, mother tongue: German

Thomas studies law at the University of Bonn (third year). In winter term 2011/12 he studied in Prague for one semester, where he attended lectures in alternative dispute resolution. This awakened his interest in this subject matter and hence he improved his knowledge by several courses in negotiation and rhetoric at the University of Bonn. He is fluent in English, German and has basic knowledge of Spanish.
